

The three walked on through the trees in the sunshine, happy they were still on the path through the forest.

They kept on into the evening ...

Before they stopped to camp for the night.

But despite all of their singing the day before, the trio had very much been caught unawares ... they had woken up right beside a human camp!

