

Hmm Where are the stepping stones?

Idaho sat on the riverbank and thought hard, staring at the deep water.

The map had promised stepping stones... but there were absolutely none to be seen (and he had looked really hard).

They must be hidden by the extra water from the melting snow.

Flint and Idaho blinked at Raven.
“What do you mean?” Flint asked.
“Well,” replied Raven, puffing himself up, “all the water from the melting snow on the high mountain collects in this river. I found that out the last time I was here.”
Flint and Idaho stared at him in surprise - Raven actually did know something useful.

Why didn't you say!

Raven!!

