

The sun was so hot it didn't take long for the pharaoh to get worried. As he looked around trying to find the way home, he noticed something furry hiding behind a sand dune.

He tried really hard to catch-up with it, but the creature kept on appearing just out of the pharaoh's reach!

Over here!

No, over here!

Yoo-hoo!

When it disappeared for the last time ...

Phew !!!

the pharaoh was AMAZED to realise that the creature had led him back home!

What could it be?

He asked people far and near what he could have seen, but no one had any idea.

He even sent his guards out.

I'm sorry Your Majesty, we've looked everywhere.

The pharaoh decided to build a statue of the furry beastie, but he wasn't much help to the stone carvers.

He's only drawn the top half.

None of them had ever seen a yeti before either (although they didn't know that was what it was).

... so they guessed it's bottom half !! The pharaoh was delighted and decided it should be called THE SPHINX which means protector.

It's amazing!!

Hmm ... I think I'll call it The Sphinx.

Looks great Boss!

The truth of the story for 'people' has been lost through time and many ideas have been had to explain The Sphinx's mysterious appearance.

Thanks to the band's ROAR ON THE NILE tour and the DEPARTMENT OF MYSTERIES, we know the real YETI story ... and now so do you!
